

Business in Bernardsville, but spent his evenings at his home in Raritan Ridge with his family. Upon his return to Raritan Ridge from Texas, it was rumored he had been in some serious disagreement with others in the lumber trade while in the South, but these rumors never took definite form.

Among the suggestions set forth to account for the shooting was one that a negro employed about a month ago by Ellis as a chauffeur and discharged at the close of his first day's work had made threats against the lumberman. Mrs. Ellis said she had spoken to her husband about the negro and neither of them imagined he had anything to do with the attempt at murder.

Up to 10 o'clock this morning the surgeons who were in attendance on Ellis thought he had a good chance for his life. His strong constitution might pull him through, they figured. But complications set in and Dr. Charles H. of Newark, a noted specialist in this matter, pronounced a dangerous operation was under consideration.

Policeman Thomas Lohby of Bernardsville arrived in Raritan Ridge early today with a big, fine bloodhound, furnished by the Raritan Ridge. The animal was taken to the post where it is believed the would-be slayer stood when he fired the shotgun. Hundreds had tramped the ground about the dog was unable to pick up any trail. In fact there was nothing in the hands of the police to be used in giving the bloodhound the scent except paper wadding from the gun. This proved useless.

The attempt to kill Ellis was made at 6:30 o'clock in the evening, when the street of Raritan Ridge was populated with residents on their way home. The station of the Passaic Division of the Lackawanna Railroad is a short distance from the Ellis home and there were several persons on the platform waiting for a train.

ROBBERY NOT CONSIDERED AS MOTIVE.

Robbery is not considered by the police in searching for a motive, as robbers do not stand outside windows and shoot into houses they have marked for looting.

The Ellis residence one of the finest in Raritan Ridge, is not in the heart of the town, although the neighborhood about it is built up. There are no woods in the vicinity, and detectives are unable to understand how a man carrying a shot gun could have sneaked into the Ellis premises, made a shot and escaped without being seen.

The would-be assassin stood on a knoll under an apple tree about fifteen feet from the dining room. The shades of the window were raised, but the light from the dining room did not extend to the street. From his position on the knoll the man fired his shot, being at a slight elevation, had a clear view of the room.

The Ellis family had finished the evening meal and Mrs. Ellis was talking to his wife, his eleven-year-old son, George, and his eight-year-old daughter, Catherine. Mr. Ellis sat at one end of the table with his left side toward the window. The boy was at his left with his back toward the window. Mrs. Ellis and the little girl were at the other end of the table.

WEAPON A MUZZLE LOADER FILLED WITH BUCKSHOT.

It is believed the gun was braced against the apple tree when the trigger was pulled. The muzzle loader was a muzzle loader, charged with buckshot. Six of the bullets went through the window and four embedded themselves in the wall. Two bullets entered Mr. Ellis's body, another tore off the top of a chair at his right hand and three more were found in the wall on the side of the room opposite the window. A splinter of glass struck the little boy on the left ear and drew blood. Although wounded himself, Dr. Ellis thought first of the boy. Rising to his feet, he cried:

"Why should they risk killing the boy in trying to shoot me?"

WANTS TO WIDEN ROADWAY OF CENTRAL PARK WEST.

Alderman Schloss Proposes to Take Six Feet From the Sidewalk.

Alderman Joseph Schloss to-day proposed the widening of Central Park West from Fifty-ninth to One Hundred and Tenth street. He suggests that six feet be cut off the sidewalk on the east side of Central Park West and that one of the street-car tracks nearest to the sidewalk be shifted to the middle of the street, so as to establish a roadway north and south.

The car tracks are close up to the sidewalk, and all of the vehicular traffic north and south is on one roadway west of the car tracks. This, says Alderman Schloss, makes crossing to and from the Park dangerous, particularly for old folks, nurses with baby carriages and children unaccompanied by adults.

"It is impossible," said Alderman Schloss, "to regulate traffic in both directions on the one side of the street. By dividing the roadway traffic can be regulated according to the established rules. Objection has been made that by reducing the width of the sidewalk we would be encroaching on park property. I do not think it worthy of serious consideration. The easterly sidewalk of Central Park West is little used."

TAFT MUCH BETTER, BUT KEEPS INDOORS.

(Special to The Evening World.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Taft is in much better condition physically to-day than he has been at any time since his return from his transcontinental trip. He is about relieved of the cold which gave him throat so much trouble, while the hoarseness which accompanied it has entirely disappeared.

This was the statement of Major De Laney, the President's physician, to-day.

At 11 o'clock the President met his cabinet in the library of the White House. All the members of the cabinet except Postmaster-General Hitchcock and Secretary Wilson attended. The meeting lasted two hours.

Arrested for Stealing $5,000 Auto.

Frank R. Chase, thirty-eight years old, a chauffeur living at No. 4 West Eighty-fourth street, was arrested to-day by Detective O'Mera of the Morrisania station in front of the Gorman Bros. garage at Two Hundred and Fifty-first street and Broadway as he was about to drive away in a $5,000 automobile, which the police claim, he stole in Boston, Oct. 2, from A. S. Porter, a real estate dealer. The car Chase was driven was identified by a Boston man sent down by Porter for the purpose. Chase pleaded not guilty in the Morrisania Court and was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing tomorrow, when Porter will be present to identify the car found in the chauffeur's possession.

BRIDE ON TRIAL FOR SLAYING HER DISLOYAL HUSBAND

Frances O'Shaughnessy a Pithable Figure as She Appears Before Judge Foster.

HER RIVAL TO TESTIFY.

Attorneys Will Attempt to Show That Her Mind Was Unbalanced.

Mrs. Frances O'Shaughnessy was placed on trial to-day for the murder of her husband, George O'Shaughnessy, whom she shot to death on May 5 last. The trial of this slim, pale girl, woman with big, blue, fear-haunted eyes, was begun before Judge Foster in General Sessions. The work of getting a jury was begun the moment she had signed into her seat and turned her frightened face upon the Judge. Assistant District Attorney Edwards has charge of the prosecution, while Joseph Rosalinsky and Jeremiah Mahoney represent the defense. They will urge that their client was mentally irresponsible at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy shot her twenty-one-year-old husband in the little furnished room they occupied at No. 46 East One Hundred and Thirtieth street. A few days before she had learned he was posing as an unmarried man and making love to eighteen-year-old Tessie Hayes, cashier in Healey's grocery store, No. 1938 Second avenue, where he was employed.

After the shooting she kissed her dead husband on the lips, went calmly into Third avenue and confessed the crime to the first policeman she met. She told him then that when she discovered her husband's unfaithfulness she decided that either he or she must die.

HOW SHE REASONED WITH HERSELF BEFORE THE SHOOTING. She reasoned that if she killed herself she would be doomed eternally, whereas if she killed her husband she might escape the crime in purgatory. This sort of reasoning might be evidence of a disordered state of mind, especially when viewed in the light of her physical condition.

Tessie Hayes will be an important witness for the prosecution. She will tell of her love for the slain man and how she was deceived, never learning that George O'Shaughnessy was married until weeks after he had declared his love for her and won her acknowledgment that she loved him.

The tragedy that has come upon this young Irish girl so soon after she crossed the Atlantic from her home in County Clare has won her a vast amount of sympathy. Her frank confession that she killed in a sudden frenzy, provoked by the knowledge that O'Shaughnessy had transferred his love to another while she was still a bride, has been accepted by some as a proof that she was mentally unbalanced. She was soon to become a mother, a fact never realized, for a few days after her arrest she was hurriedly removed to Bellevue Hospital. Her baby was born dead.

A letter she wrote to the Rev. Father Phelan of St. Cecilia's Church on the day after the shooting is a remarkable document, and will be offered in evidence by the accused young woman's attorneys. It reads:

My Dear Father: You married George and I twelve months ago. I have asked Mrs. Guyer (my landlady) and the police to see my savings (it is only $100) to go and bury George and say a mass for his soul. Pray for him during the Sunday mass. He has nobody in New York, and I would like that you would see that he is buried respectfully in a Catholic cemetery, as if I ever get out or before I go to the electric chair I will ask the request to see his grave, and I want you to be able to guide me to his grave. I want you to see also that no flowers are accepted from Tessie Hayes, the woman who ruined both our lives. I forgive her, but for God's sake carry out this request for me.

I have no relatives to take him in hand, so I place him in yours. He has been terribly good and I love him still. Pray for me that God will help me beat the crime and the crosses for me. God bless you, and see to George.

MAKES DIAMONDS OF GAS.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—A new method of making diamonds has been discovered by Dr. Werner von Bolton, a chemical expert with the Siemens-Halske Laboratory.

The process is based on the decomposition of illuminating gas by mercury amalgam, whereby the carbon in the gas is crystallized into diamonds. As these diamonds are extremely minute, small bits of diamond dust are introduced into the apparatus, where they serve as nuclei upon which larger diamonds are built up.

The process is still experimental and the diamonds are small.

Dropped Dead in His Office.

While discussing the details of foreign shipment with his daughter-to-day Joseph J. Finerty, sixty-two, a manufacturer of fire department and railroad supplies at No. 146 Heade street, was stricken with heart failure and dropped dead in his office chair.

Bride on Trial and Man She Shot

WILLETT ACCUSED AS A VOTE BUYER

William Willett Jr. and Joseph Cassidy to promote the election of William Willett Jr. to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court.

"By receiving money for voting for a certain person at such convention." "By causing the nomination of William Willett Jr. to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court upon the payment of a sum of money."

Has been committed and accused, Louis T. Walter Jr. thereof. You are hereby commanded forthwith to arrest the above named Louis T. Walter Jr. and bring him before me in the County Court House at the First Ward of the Borough of Queens, City and State of New York.

WILLETT FORMALLY CHARGED WITH PAYING FOR NOMINATION. The charges made to meet the Willett case were:

By paying money to induce the delegates to the aforementioned convention to vote for a particular person upon the payment of money. By attempting to influence the votes of certain delegates to the said convention.

By expecting and requesting the nomination of Justice of the Supreme Court at said convention upon the payment of a sum of money.

By unlawfully conspiring with Louis T. Walter Jr. and Joseph Cassidy to promote the election of William Willett Jr. to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court. Mr. De Witt then read parts of the other charges that differed from the Walter's warrant. The Cassidy warrant identical in form with the Walter's warrant, except for this statement of the offense:

By unlawfully conspiring with Louis T. Walter Jr. and William Willett Jr. to promote the election of William Willett Jr. to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court.

By influencing the nomination of William Willett Jr. to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court upon payment to him of a sum of money.

"We are ready to proceed with the examination," said Justice Scudder, "unless counsel have some suggestions to offer."

"We ought to have time to get acquainted," said Col. Bacon. "These cases are closely related and Mr. Collins and myself appear for Mr. Willett. We have never met Mr. Dana Wallace who is to represent Mr. Cassidy and Mr. Walter. We would like to have time to confer as to the case."

"We thought that two weeks—" began Col. Bacon.

"Oh—no," interposed the Court, with the emphasis on the "no." "They might at least plead now," suggested Mr. De Witt.

"We don't think that we ought to be required before having a conference," replied Col. Bacon.

"We should have time to allow public sentiment and to read the papers in the case," said Mr. Willett.

"I will continue the examination until next Monday," said the Court, "and the defendants at that time will be prepared to plead. In the mean time they are paroled in the custody of their counsel. I think that the formalities of the statute require that a bond be given, and they will come on Monday prepared to give bond in the sum of $5,000."

The clerk of the court formally adjourned this session and the defendants left the court room.

Cassidy and Walter came together to the court-house. They had hardly been in the corridor three minutes before a messenger came over to their corner to say that Mr. Willett wanted to speak to them in a neighboring corridor.

AFRAID EVERY POLITICAL WILL BE CALLED PLOTTER.

"If this keeps up there won't be any place in politics for anybody except a deaf and dumb man," said Cassidy. "A man can't say a good word for a fellow he wants to see get in office without being called a conspirator."

"I was Mr. Willett's friend," said Walter. "I talked for him, worked for him and helped to get him nominated. If that makes me a conspirator, then all of us are conspirators in American political life. The prosecution did not believe that I had sold any stock to Mr. Willett. When they found out that the deal was really made they did not want to bring out the facts."

Mr. Willett came from the opposite end of the corridor alone. "Alexander Bacon," he said. "I have nothing to do with the cases of Mr. Cassidy and Mr. Walter."

HETTY GREEN IS 77 TODAY

extent, but I believe that work will cure almost any ordinary malady." Mrs. Green was asked if there was not some good work she had done in the past year that she was willing to make public upon her birth anniversary.

"I'm opposed to bragging and if I told you of my charities I would be no better than the people I criticize," she said.

Urged that on a day like the present she might depart from her rule, the richest woman dictated this statement: "One way is to give money and to make a big show. That is not my way. I am of the Quaker belief, and although the Quakers are about all dead, I still follow their principles. But I am not a hard woman and I have done acts for which I am proud."

"An ordinary gift to be appreciated is not a gift in the eyes of the Lord. I might tell you of a school for boys and girls of the intermediate age which I have helped with between $300,000 and $400,000. This school is in New York State."

"The land for the school was bought during the panic of 1907 and it cost one-third what it would have cost at any other time. The buildings were put up at a time when the poor needed employment. I supplied the money to purchase the land and erect the buildings. Lastly, there was the benefit of the completed school where boys and girls are being taught practical things."

SHE HAS PERFORMED FORTY ACTS SHE'S PROUD OF.

"Thus, you see, three things were accomplished in this one gift. Land was purchased at a time when money was scarce and the two-thirds savings in its purchase went to the benefit of the situation; second, poor people out of work were employed; lastly, the school was established."

"I have not been to the school, I

Perhaps you have tried medicine, but it is only a tickling in the throat; but when your chest is sore and simple remedies don't answer, take Eckman's Alternative. Neglect often leads to more serious trouble; a case in point follows:

(Gentlemen: In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; I had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicinal remedy to any one."

only got it going. That is quite enough for me."

"It is like to do things when the benefit is many-sided, and this is only one of forty acts I have done of which I do feel proud."

"Where is this school located, Mrs. Green?" was asked.

"There you are, trying to pry, and make my gift no gift at all," she said with evident show of annoyance. "Have I not made it clear that I do not believe in charity announcements? I only told you of the school because you asked me what I believed was the proper way of giving. It just happened to come into my mind. No, I will not tell you the religious denomination under which the school is being conducted. It is my secret, but the school is being well managed by good men and women and my little help in the work needs no advertisement."

"Will you name some of the forty other gifts?" she was asked.

"I shan't. I have told you more than enough already," Mrs. Green replied. "Besides, I am rather tired, having walked over here from the National Park Bank, where I spent two hours of good work."

Mrs. Green spent last night with her most intimate friend, Countess Anna Leary of No. 102 Fifth avenue, whom she met for the first time many years ago in the Surrogate's Court.

For a woman of seventy-seven years Mrs. Green shows remarkable agility. Her complexion is good and she steps out like a woman of forty. Her memory was most clear, and she related incidents of twenty-five and fifty years ago, giving the names of people present at dinners and the remarks they made on those occasions.

UP EARLY TO-DAY AND CAME DOWNTOWN BY TROLLEY.

She arose this morning at 6:30 o'clock and in her own language, "had my breakfast as soon as the cook had it ready." She walked unnoticed through Eighty-fourth street to Madison avenue and boarded a southbound car. She says her eyesight is so good she can tell the Astor Place cars, which she patronizes, long before they reach the crossing. At Astor place and Broadway she boarded the downtown Broadway car, getting off in front of St. Paul's Church and reaching the safety deposit vaults under the National Park Bank across the street at 9:45 o'clock.

When she got to her office Col. Green had her birthday gift all ready for her, tied up in blue tissue paper. It was a black bag, specially made of silk, with strings, so she could carry it over her wrist. Mrs. Green has been carrying the same kind of black bag for half a century and her son's thoughtfulness in seeing that the old one was well worn and supplying a new one gave her more pleasure than if the gift had been a diamond sunburst.

"My boy has a birthday himself in August and I guess I will have to sit for my picture between now and then," Mrs. Green said. "Our family has always been fond of portraits. We have many of them. I am going to dress up for mine. That is why I don't want to be snap-shotted to-day. I am going to look my best when I have my next picture taken."

less, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting an application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has so much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby."

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 20, 1911.
